- must = it is necessary, an obligation: You must be quiet.
- mustn't = it is not allowed: You mustn't eat.
- don't have to = it is not necessary, you can choose: You don't have to pay.
- After must, we use the base verb without to.

IN CONTEXT في سياق

Here are the rules. You must be quiet because people are reading and studying. You mustn't eat or drink near the books. You must show your student card when you borrow a book, and you must bring it back within two weeks.

You mustn't make phone calls, but you can use your phone to search for information. You don't have to come every day, and you don't have to pay: the library is free for all students! If you have a question, ask the librarian.
